Tony stayed with British Rail for at least 40 years, receiving his long service award, until his retirement. Much of Tony's free time was spent researching and viewing locomotives, and his children believed there was a loco' museum or train ride in every holiday destination in England. When the Flying Scotsman was shipped to Australia and refurbished, Tony was delighted to become part of the support team accompanying it. In latter years he collected model engines of the tractions that he had worked on mostly at Kings Cross. See Lots 151-181. £80 - £120
